Vote as You Think, Says Taft.
Candidate Tells Southerners to Break Away from Traditions.
Their Material Interest Is Republican Success, and They Want It.
Remarkable Trip Through Tennessee Shows Feeling for Nominee.
BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Judge William H. Taft's keynote for Tennessee and the South was struck by the candidate at Chattanooga this morning. Throughout the day, which was spent in traversing the State, he followed the same line of argument, and met with the same hearty response.
With verbal amplifications, Judge Taft emphasized this argument: "With the material interests of the South dependent upon the continuance of Republican policies; with nothing but historic tradition demanding its people to vote the Democratic ticket, praying meanwhile for the success of Republicanism, with southern Democracy nothing but a tail to northern Democracy's kite, then why not now take the first political coup, and politically where the material interests of the country demand, and vote the Republican ticket?"
ALL WANT TO HEAR HIM.
So great was the demand for the candidate that his itinerary for four steps in the State was increased to seven. He spoke during the day and evening at Chattanooga, Cleveland, Knoxville, Morristown, Greenville, Johnson City and Bristol. With an all-night run he will reach Salisbury, N. C., tomorrow morning, and Richmond, Va., tomorrow night.

NAT ESCHEWS MATRIMONY.
Goodwin Says He Is Not Looking for Domestic Troubles.
CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Nat C. Goodwin came to Chicago with his partner, George O. Wooten, from Reno, Nev. They will leave for New York Monday evening.
"I returned from Europe seven weeks ago," said Mr. Goodwin. "While there I did not see Miss Edna Goodrich. Why should I? She is a fine little woman and all that, but our relations have simply been of business and not of the heart. My marriage to and divorce from Miss Maxine Elliott, secured last week, is public property."
"I am now an actor, business man and newspaper publisher—for I have the Reno Daily Gazette and Miner. Is that not enough to keep me busy without hunting around for more domestic troubles? I guess so."

BANKERS ACCUSED OF REMARKABLE FRENZIED FINANCE.
Scene Sketched in New York Court during trial of Morse and Curtis, whose marvelous financial transactions are now being aired in the effort to prove them guilty of violating the national banking laws.
TOW-HEADED YOUTH BORROWED BIG SUMS.
Broker's Clerk Got Hundred Thousand and a Week from Bank—Startling Financiering Exposed in Trial of C. W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis.
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A tow-headed youth of 19, until recently a $12-a-week clerk in a broker's office, was the star witness today at the trial in the criminal branch of the United States Court of Charles W. Morse, financial man and promoter, who, with Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, is charged with having violated the national banking laws.
In the testimony of Edward P. Morse, a government bank examiner, it had been revealed that a person named Leslie W. Whiting, had been one of the heaviest borrowers from the bank, at one time owing the institution $310,000. Hardly a week went by in the year of 1907, the testimony showed, that Whiting did not borrow $100,000 or more, giving ice stock principally, as security.
It always appeared in the records as presented, however, that the enormous sums of money borrowed by Whiting were credited to the accounts of Charles W. Morse.
SURPRISE IN COURT.
At the conclusion of Examiner Morse's testimony, Leslie Whiting was called to the stand and "threw in the courtroom, who had expected to see a dignified, shrewd-looking business man step forth, were astonished to see a smooth-cheeked boy of under 20 years, walk nervously to the witness stand.
A smile swept over the room, and Judge Hough rapped sharply for order. After Whiting had been made to describe how he had come to sign the notes, which made him indebted to the bank for such large amounts, he was asked: "Could you have paid this note I hold for $25,000?"
"No, sir," answered the startled boy. "What, me?"
"Could you have paid a $100 note?" pressed the attorney for the prosecution.
"No, sir," responded the boy, a trifle more assured.
For half an hour longer the youth was kept on the stand while a bunch of letters bearing the signature "Leslie E. Whiting" and directed to the National Bank of North America, were read. These letters, couched in businesslike terms, gave orders to the bank for transferring collateral charges and renewal of notes.
A sentence in one letter read: "Enclosed please find my check for $25,000, which apply to my account." The witness explained that he had been sent to the bank by his employer to sign the notes. He said he knew he was incurring an obligation, but felt sure his employer would protect the notes.
ANOTHER CLERK BORROWED.
Whiting testified that he had never talked with Mr. Morse or Mr. Curtis concerning the signing of notes, or the putting up of collateral.
The boy also said that he did not think his employers knew that he was not of age.

MANY DIE IN FIRE.
Flames Wipe Out Villages.
Twenty-three Known to Have Perished; Estimates up to Two Hundred.
Fifteen, Mostly Women and Children, Roast to Death on Relief Train.
Wind Blowing Gale Drives Blaze Down Upon Michigan Hamlets.
ALPENA (Mich.) Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Twenty-three persons are known to have died in the forest fires in Presque Isle and the surrounding counties last night. Scores of small settlements are surrounded by the flames, and it is feared many other lives have been lost. Estimates run as high as 300 as the number of deaths.
Every report received tonight from the forest fire-swept country to the northwest of this city increases the extent and gravity of the fire situation and the death list, which started today, with the cremation of fifteen persons in the Mets relief train, is steadily growing.
Presque Isle and Cheboygan counties are all aflame and seventy-five miles between this city and the city of Cheboygan are reported to be almost a solid mass of fire.
Alpena county is ablaze in every direction. Reports of fatalities are coming in from many places, but it has been impossible as yet to compile anything like an authentic list of the victims in the burned district.
Edison, South Rogers and Mets are among the destroyed villages. La Ronge is threatened tonight and it is expected it will be destroyed before morning. Only one church is left at Cathro, and it is crowded with refugees.
At Presque Isle, on Lake Huron, Keeper McGarrity was forced to abandon the government fog signal station and flee for his life.
It was at first reported tonight that Bishop Charles Williams of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Michigan was either on the ill-fated Mets train, or in the danger zone about Mets. Later it became known, however, that he went to Onaway without stopping at Mets.
Both the Cadillac and Traverse City reports say that the fires in the northeastern part of the State have started again with great force, and are threatening those cities. The fire is only a quarter of a mile away from Traverse City on the southwest.
From the Upper Peninsula come reports that the fires in Chippewa and Houghton counties are very dangerous and spreading rapidly.
Fifteen of the victims were incinerated while on a relief train, seeking safety after their homes at Mets, a village, twenty-three miles north of here, had been destroyed. The train was ditched by spreading rails at Nowicki siding. The victims, nearly all women and children, could not escape, and were slowly roasted to death.
Four other persons who resided near the place of the wreck also were caught by the flames and died in their homes.
The other known fatalities were near Hurst, also in Presque Isle county. There Henry Kempf, his wife and two children were burned to death. Another child is missing. The four bodies were found today in the ruins of the farm-house, and it is feared there is little possibility of the child having escaped.
With the wind blowing a gale it is feared many other hamlets beside Mets have been wiped out. News of several disasters was received before the flames broke the telephone connections. Every building in Bolton is burned except the church.
At Cathro half a dozen houses and

NO INVITATION SENT COREY.

Head of Steel Trust Not Asked to Attend Sister's Wedding.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Owing to the division in the family, due to my son's second marriage, neither my son, William Ellis Corey, his second wife, who was Mabel Gilman, his first wife nor any of her relatives have been invited to the wedding of my daughter, November 2," said Mrs. A. A. Corey, mother of the steel magnate, today.

Miss Ada B. Corey, sister of the millionaire, is to marry Dr. Charles Howard Aufhammer, at present attached to the staff of the Episcopal Hospital.

"Ellis and Mabel will understand why they are not invited," added Mrs. Corey, "and so will the first Mrs. Corey. I could not invite one without the other, and to have asked them all would have only meant trouble. We did intend, I admit, to have a regular old-fashioned country wedding, but only a few moments of reflection were required to convince us that it would not do to attempt anything of the kind."

CRISIS OF TRIAL.

BABY JOHN FACES TEST.

Mrs. Martin's Lawyers Will Try to Break Him Down.

Those Conversant With Case Doubt the Outcome.

Cross-examination of the Boy Begins on Tuesday.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)
OAKLAND, Oct. 16.—The direct examination of baby John Martin in the trial of Mrs. Isabella J. Martin for the dynamiting of Judge Ogden's house, was closed this morning.

At its conclusion, Judge A. L. Frick and D. J. Wyman, the attorneys for Mrs. Martin, asked the court for an adjournment until next Tuesday, before they begin their cross-examination.

Both lawyers stated that they wished to make a closer study of the boy's direct testimony, before beginning the cross-examination.

"We will break him down," said Wyman. But those who are conversant with the case and who have watched this really remarkable youth, are doubtful.

It is understood, however, that this cross-examination will be the crucial point in the whole case, and will be a feature of the trial.

If the plans of the defense are carried out, the boy will be grilled for at least a week, and every artifice known to the legal profession will be played to break his most remarkable tale of crime and strong evidence against his so-called mother.

FAIRBANKS KEPT BUSY.

Vice-President Makes Round of Rallies in New York.

Warns Hearers of Danger to Tariff Under Democrats.

Says Republicans Stand for Sound Monetary Laws.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—In a round of Republican rallies, held in widely separated sections of this city, Vice-President Fairbanks addressed enthusiastic audiences, aggregating many thousands of persons and ran the gamut of Republican achievements during the period when the policies at issue in this campaign were in process of formulation and execution.

In his Grand-street address, Mr. Fairbanks spoke on the tariff, warning his hearers that they might expect the overthrow of the protective system, under which the country had attained its greatest measure of prosperity, if the Democratic party were returned to power.

DISCUSSES CURRENCY.
Speeding northward, in an automobile, the Vice-President discussed the currency at Turner Hall on Eighty-fifth street, pointing to the necessity for further monetary legislation and the importance of choosing for the task of shaping such legislation men identified with the party, which, he said, was responsible for practically every sound monetary measure enacted since the Civil War.

In a speech in Harlem, Mr. Fairbanks took up the trust question, answering the complaint of those who pointed to the comparatively small number of Federal prosecutions under the anti-trust laws.

URGES REPUBLICAN HOUSE.
In another speech, the Vice-President asked his hearers not to lose sight of the paramount importance of electing a Republican House of Representatives to uphold the standards of a Republican national administration.

Mr. Fairbanks was given an enthusiastic reception at every point of his tour of the city. The automobile had to make fast time between meetings to enable him to keep up with his schedule, but he filled all his engagements and was in good voice on each of the many platforms he occupied.

POPE WARMS OF SPIRITUALISM.
Sends Representative to America to Explain Phenomena to Catholic Students.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Warning from Pope Pius that a wave of spiritualism is rising over the United States was sounded at the Ignatius College today by Godfrey Raupert, an English scientist who has been sent to America by the Pope to explain spirit phenomena to students in Catholic colleges and seminaries.

"Spiritualism has thousands of followers in England, France, Germany and Italy," said Mr. Raupert. "Many of the leading scientists of the world, including Prof. Michelson, in France; and Lombroso, the criminologist, and Morrell, in Italy, are Spiritualists. Europe is far ahead of the United States in scientific understanding of spirit phenomena, and his belief is based within a short time the craze will come to America."

The Pope is anxious that American Catholics should understand the subject in preparation for the coming of spiritualism, by which the leaders abroad are attempting to establish a new religion, claiming that Christ was an expert medium, and that the demonstrations of Pontebon, the transfiguration, and the events following his crucifixion were evidences of this power."

BRAZIL CAN'T CORNER COFFEE.
Gives up Foolhardy Financial Experiment After Losing Fifteen Million Dollars.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After having sustained a loss of $15,000,000, Brazil has abandoned its attempt to corner the world's coffee market.

For two years the government of Sao Paulo, the chief State of Brazil, has been purchasing coffee from its planters with the avowed intention of keeping up the price. Now, after having expended $75,000,000 and having on its hands $300,000,000 bags of coffee, the valuation scheme, as the attempted corner was called, is to be abandoned.

SOUNDS KEYNOTE.

and what I might say here, my interest is bringing about such a result as will more closely unite the sections than they have been united.

ON FORMER VISIT.
"It is quite possible that we may not see a single electoral vote in the South. I think we will get enough without, but nothing would gratify me more than if I could enter the Presidential chair with the feeling that in the electoral vote that put me there was the vote of Tennessee and Kentucky."

"We all know the history of the country and we know the natural results of the war. We know how the South was ranged on the side of the Democratic party. We know its natural conservative tendency. We know the homogeneous character of its people, the preservation of traditions of the family."

"Why, I remember when I went to Nashville and got into the families of some of the lawyers there. They were telling and enjoying jokes, the foreign jokes and repartee and forcible arguments that had been handed on by the leaders of the bar. That would not be possible north of the Ohio River, because we have changed so that our family recollections don't go back that far."

TO BREAK TRADITION.
"I am here to see if we can not make a beginning of disturbing that tradition and relegating it to the place where useless traditions ought to be. The enormous industrial expansion of the South which has taken place since 1865, and largely under the auspices of the Republican administration, ought, it seems to me, to demonstrate to the thoughtful man in the South that their logical position is in the party which makes such prosperity possible."

"There are a great many men in the South, and doubtless many within the sound of my voice, who are strictly Democrats. They are to be divided into three classes:

The first class is going to vote for me. The second class is not going to vote at all. The third class is going to vote for my opponent with the hope that I will be elected. I think, my friends, that you know, as I know, that that is a fair statement."

TAKE THE PLUNGE.
So I have come here to see if I cannot convince the two latter classes that what they ought to do is come right out and just take their first cold bath in leaving historic tradition that is naturally dear to their heart, and come right into the party whose principles they approve."

"One of the things that brought the North and South closely together was the Spanish War. The first time after the Civil War, we were able to demonstrate how close our hearts were across the Ohio River and the Mason and Dixon line, by running up the flag of our country in freedom Cuba and in maintaining the authority of the flag the country over."

"My feeling always has been, and I feel sure it is the feeling of the South, that the South—but my feelings always have been that the sympathies and interest of the South were largely with the Republican policy in regard to the Philippines. My personal experience in the Philippines makes me think there was as great an interest in the Philippines as there was in the South as there was in the North."

ANSWERED NATION'S CALL.
It is true that there was a good deal of eloquence hurled from the floor of the Senate and House to the awful things we were doing in the Philippines and the liberty we were sacrificing, but when we called upon the South to furnish her quota of men who were to fight the country's battles over there, who were to make part of the effort to govern over there, we did not find the South wanting, and I am glad to be able to say that in the service in the Philippines and in the selection of men to represent America there in that government, we never paid the slightest heed to State lines."

"We have as many Democrats in the Philippine service today as we have Republicans, and we have as many Democrats as we have Republicans in the Southwest being among the speakers."

The meeting was called to order by Walter J. Ballard, with A. R. McLean presiding.

The chief address of the evening was an able defense of the tariff delivered by Gen. Samson, former United States Minister to Ecuador. Judge Monroe also spoke.

Europe is far ahead of the United States in scientific understanding of spirit phenomena, and his belief is based within a short time the craze will come to America."

The Pope is anxious that American Catholics should understand the subject in preparation for the coming of spiritualism, by which the leaders abroad are attempting to establish a new religion, claiming that Christ was an expert medium, and that the demonstrations of Pontebon, the transfiguration, and the events following his crucifixion were evidences of this power."

BRAZIL CAN'T CORNER COFFEE.
Gives up Foolhardy Financial Experiment After Losing Fifteen Million Dollars.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After having sustained a loss of $15,000,000, Brazil has abandoned its attempt to corner the world's coffee market.

For two years the government of Sao Paulo, the chief State of Brazil, has been purchasing coffee from its planters with the avowed intention of keeping up the price. Now, after having expended $75,000,000 and having on its hands $300,000,000 bags of coffee, the valuation scheme, as the attempted corner was called, is to be abandoned.

OXFORD DEGREE FOR PRESIDENT.

Mr. Roosevelt to Visit in England.

To Deliver Romanes Lecture After Hunt.

Will Also Make Address at Sorbonne in Paris.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
LONDON, Oct. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Your correspondent is informed on the highest authority that President Roosevelt will visit England after his African trip in 1936, and that he will deliver the Romanes lecture at Oxford, on that occasion he will receive the honorary degree of D.C.L., which Oxford already has bestowed upon Emperor William. Also that the President will visit Paris and deliver an address at the Sorbonne in Paris.

According to the present plans Mrs. Roosevelt will join the President at Kharطوم on the journey northward, and on their arrival here will be welcomed by the whole British public. Your informant adds that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to name a guest who would be assured of a more hearty and genuine welcome from all classes of the people, as Roosevelt's reputation is secure in this country as that of the greatest American President since the days of Lincoln.

WHITE HOUSE CONFIRMS.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The report from London as to President Roosevelt's movements following his trip to Africa is substantially true, and was admitted at the White House tonight.

Yellow Editor Caught in Privacy of State Room.

Nebraska Deputy Sheriff Breaks Through Car Door With Papers in Hand Suit for $500,000 Brought by Gov. Haskell of Oklahoma—Proceedings Surprised Willis.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.)
OMAHA (Nebr.) Oct. 10.—After a dramatic scene in Union Pacific Hotel No. 2 last night, which the door of his stateroom was burst open by a deputy sheriff, William R. Hearst, the millionaire editor, was served with papers notifying him that suit for $500,000 had been brought against him for slander and libel by Gov. Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, in the Douglas county, Nebraska, District Court.

The suit was filed in the District Court at 10 o'clock last night, after which the papers were immediately withdrawn. It was known that Hearst had passed through the last night on his way from Seattle to New York and plans were laid accordingly. Union Pacific train No. 2 was due at 9 o'clock, but did not arrive until 11:20 o'clock.

Deputy Sheriff Stewart was on hand with orders to serve the summons on Hearst, but he was a busy man. He was in the stateroom, and the candidate rode to the Auditorium, where he delivered the principal speech of the programme outlined for him.

En route, Mr. Bryan halted three times to address the crowds stationed along the line of march where it had been arranged that he should stop and briefly speak to overflow meetings.

Mr. Bryan boarded a Burlington train for Omaha immediately after the Auditorium meeting.

A delegation of local Democrats accompanied him. Unexpected crowds in many of the Nebraska and Colorado towns and cities greeted Mr. Bryan on his trip from Plattsmouth to Denver.

For every stop found a crowd assembled and a speech was called for and given.

POLITICAL BRIEFS.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Department of Justice has received the resignation of William Story, United States Marshall for Utah. Mr. Story is a candidate for State Senator on the Republican ticket.

CHICAGO MAN GOES EAST.
CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—National Chairman Mack, who has been in Chicago for nearly two weeks directing the campaign for the election of the Democratic ticket, left tonight for the East. After registering at his home in Lincoln Park, Mack will leave for New York to look over the situation in New York and the East.

SERIOUSLY SCALDED.
Della Helm, 12 years old, of No. 45 South Daily street, stepped into a tub containing hot water and sustained serious scalds on the lower part of her body late last night. She was about to take a bath and did not notice that the water was too hot. She was removed to the County Hospital and cared for by Dr. Bryant. Her condition is serious.

FOUND IT HANDY.
Two men, who gave their names as Charles Hale and Newton Hanson, were arrested last night by Officer Howe for stealing an automobile belonging to Harry Burt from in front of the Naud Junction pavilion. The machine was left standing in front of Jack Browne, chauffeur for Burt. Seven men crowded into it and started up, but when they saw the officer at Main and Redondo streets all jumped out and he was only able to capture two of them.

MILLION-DOLLAR REVENGE.
Chicago Police Suspect Discharged Employee of Setting Fire to Salt Docks.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Incendiaries, for revenge, according to the police, resulted in a loss of nearly $1,000,000 by fire early today in the mammoth docks and freight yards of the International Salt Company. One man, who was discharged by the company several weeks ago, was locked up on suspicion, after being rescued from a burning freight car.

The prisoner is Perchold Gettford. He was unable to explain satisfactorily to the police why he was on the company's property.

The flames swept through the docks, jumped the river, attacked and threatened a big grain elevator with destruction and blistered several steamers and barges laden with grain. Two fire boats towed away the imperiled vessels and saved them, while firemen ashore prevented the burning of the elevator.

BANKER SUED FOR USURY.
Client Complains He Was Charged
Large Sum of Interest in Violation of Law.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A banker, charged with violation of the usury law, was today sued by a client who complained that he had been charged with an exorbitant sum of interest on a loan.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.
COUNCIL BLUFFS (Iowa) Oct. 16.—
Salt has been commenced against Ernest E. Hart, president of the First National Bank of this city, by Andrew E. Gilbert, former Alderman and a business man, to recover $17,194, which Gilbert alleges Hart owes him as a result of the usury law.

Gilbert alleges he paid Hart $357 usury on a loan of $13,239, and that under the Federal law regulating national banks, Hart and his bank are liable for twice the amount collected.
Gilbert also sues for $25,000 damages for alleged defamation of character.
Gilbert in his petition sets up that the notes by which Hart collected the large sums were made to Hart personally, in violation of the law, and that he declined to make any statement with reference to the suit.

HOLDS UP THIRTY MEN.
HIGHWAYMAN HAS NERVE.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
SEATTLE, Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Thirty loggers and woodmen in the camp of the Clear Lake Logging Company at Clear Lake last night were held up by a highwayman who demanded a ransom of $100. The man was armed with a revolver and a knife, and he threatened to kill any of the men who refused to pay. The men were held for several hours, and the ransom was paid. The highwayman then released the men and fled.

WARRIED BY NIGHT RIDERS.
DEALING IN COTTON.

FLAQUEMIN (La.) Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A prominent planter of this parish, who has received a letter from "Determination," whom detectives are now tracing, as an organizer of night riders, the latter differs from others in that he is a single individual to other persons in this State, in that it commands Cooper to organize a band of night riders among his neighbors, and to support him to "immediately call together a few of your trusted neighbors and have this notice posted on all signs."

The warning reads:
"You are notified not to give any more cotton to the price advances of 15 cents per pound, under penalty of fire."

"DETERMINATION."
"Chief Night Rider."

DESPERATE BLACKMAIL.
BATTLE WITH POLICE.

MONROVIA (Pa.) Oct. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A black-hand letter, received by a man named Caselli, a well-to-do Italian, received a black-hand letter, ordering him to meet an agent of the society last night and pay him $500, refusal to be followed by death.

Caselli, who is a member of the society, met the agent at the meeting place, but two policemen concealed near by arrested the agent. Three other Italians tried to rescue the agent, and Aldrich.

AERONAUTICS.
FIFTH BALLOON IS TAKEN FROM SEA.
Plauen Rescued from Water and Pilots Taken to Hull, England, One in Serious Condition—Hergesell, Missing, Also Out at Sea.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The North Sea still continues to give up its balloon victims. Word reached here tonight that the German balloon Plauen and its occupants, had been picked up by a fishing vessel, 240 miles from Spurn Head, and landed at Hull, England. The Plauen was one of the balloons that started from here in the endurance test on Monday with twenty-eight others.

The Hergesell, under command of Lieut. Foerster, is the only one of these balloons that has been rescued. A message from this balloon was picked up near Osterwahn, in Hanover province, which it is believed, was written on Tuesday. It was as follows:

"Hergesell, 9 a.m., height 2,100 meters, direction and place uncertain.
Probably near the coast. Foerster.
Meteorological observations show that the wind at that time was blowing in the direction of the sea, and it is certain the Hergesell was driven northward, taken by the wind, and that if she is found at all, she will be found like several other balloons in the two contests, in the waters of the North Sea.

Warships are still searching the waters and all outgoing ships have been notified at various ports to be on the outlook, and it is possible that the two men who ascended in the Hergesell may have been rescued by some vessel.
The escape of other balloons during the past week is considered little short of miraculous. The Helvetia, the Swiss representative, the Castilla, Spanish; the Busley, German; and the St. Louis, American, all were forced to make descent to the sea, but the

LaFayette
A Pattern For
THE NEW American Youth
LAFAYETTE

If young girls, how many of us would do things differently. We would begin differently in furnishing our homes. We would buy only articles of approved work and permanent value, and all with due regard for the beauty of simplicity. In laundrying, we would begin with a few pieces of the LaFayette, buying a few pieces at a time if need be. The LaFayette is indeed a pattern for American youth—in its pointed bows and old-fashioned outlines, and always charming in its suggestion of Colonial dames and daughters who used such silver in entertaining the nobles of their day, prominent among whom was the great LaFayette.

Our suggestion to the youth of our city is—"LaFayette!" If genuine, it bears the special LaFayette trade-mark.

When requested we will mail free of charge an illustrated booklet of the LA FAYETTE PATTERN.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

"A True Bill"

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

New Incorporation.

The Secretary of State at Sacramento yesterday issued a license to incorporate the Randall Graphite Sheet Lubricator Company of Los Angeles, with $500,000 capital stock.

Stewart Funeral.

The funeral of Robert C. Stewart, the young Los Angeles lawyer who died Wednesday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Pierce Bros. morgue. After the service, his mother, who arrived yesterday from Chicago, will accompany the remains to Santa Barbara, the family home.

Bankrupt and Pauper.

J. Garfield Clarke of Venice filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition yesterday in the United States District Court. His stated liabilities are $1145, and his assets, $235. L. C. Morris of Oxnard filed a pauper affidavit in connection with his bankruptcy petition. His liabilities are about $2500 and assets are nominal.

Supreme Court Coming.

The State Supreme Court will convene here next week, beginning Monday afternoon. The most important criminal case on the calendar is that of Daniel Meak, convicted of the murder of Patrolman Lyon. The case will be quickly disposed of, as the appeal was a technical one without any merit, the prosecution asserts.

Sentence Suspended.

J. T. Wilson, charged with embezzling from a local ice company, was sentenced on two separate counts yesterday by Justice Frederickson in the Police Court. He was ordered to serve thirty days on the chain gang on each count, but the justice later allowed the man his freedom on his promise to behave and keep out of trouble in the future.

Murphy's Striking Topic.

William Murphy offers a striking subject for his address at the gospel temperance meeting in Blanchard Hall on Sunday evening. He will speak from his own experience on "The Policeman's Club and the Patrol Wagon, the Law and Love and Kindness, As a Redeeming Force in Temperance Work." The subject will be illustrated with startling stories. Miss Mattie Scherer will sing and Dr. W. A. Lamb will lead the song service.

Forestry Changes.

In line with department changes in the United States Forestry Service, the Los Angeles office will hereafter report directly to San Francisco, headquarters of this section. Instead of corresponding with Washington, for the convenience of the department, the West has been divided into six sections. Arthur L. Dahl, now chief of the bureau, will be promoted to the head of the maintenance department at San Francisco. He will serve under F. E. Olmstead, assistant forester.

Mayr Won't Appeal.

A report that Walter A. Mayr would take an appeal from Judge James's decision, denying a divorce from Mrs. Anna Elita Mayr, was denied by him yesterday. "In the first place, if any appeal is to be taken," said he, "it will have to be filed by Mrs. Mayr, who brought the suit. In the second place, it must be remembered that the decision of the court has not yet been filed, and a motion for a new trial could not be made until that has been done." The litigation in this divorce case has cost about $10,000 thus far, and an appeal would probably cost as much more.

Imperial Exhibit.

Beginning November 1, Imperial county will maintain a permanent exhibit in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and daily lectures will be given in Assembly Hall, on the products and advantages of that section. The stereoscopic lectures are well-attended and Secretary Wiggins believes they are of great utility in impressing the advantages of various sections upon home-seekers from the East. From time to time choice samples of Imperial products have been placed in the chamber, but no regular exhibit has been maintained. The commercial organizations of the valley will secure an expert to give the lectures.

AFTER SCALPERS.

Salt Lake Road Buses to Restrict Los Angeles Brokers from Dealing in Excursion Tickets.

Suit was brought in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, by the Salt Lake Railroad Company, against Charles Billings, Frank Benjamin and Robert Boyd, railroad ticket brokers of this city, to restrain them from buying or selling unused portions of excursion tickets issued over the Salt Lake and associated lines.

The bill in equity sets forth that the railroad company makes a practice of issuing excursion tickets on account of various conventions held in cities on the Pacific Coast and that special rates are made on this class of tickets. It is alleged that the defendants have purchased unused portions at various times and have sold them to the public.

This suit is in line with others brought by the Southern Pacific Company against ticket scalpers in Los Angeles, San Francisco and other points. By obtaining a permanent injunction in the Federal Court, the railroads hope to curtail the scalping business to a large extent.

MENACE OF BRYAN.

Railroad Builder Will Begin Great Construction Work If Judge Taft Is Elected.

Frank Murphy, a capitalist and railroad builder of Arizona, who has been in New York for the last few weeks, is a guest at the Alexandria. Mr. Murphy is in Los Angeles to meet his wife, who has been spending the summer here, and will return with her to Arizona.

sona expects to send a Republican delegate to Congress, elect a Republican Legislature and be admitted to Statehood during the short session of Congress. What is good for Arizona is good for California, and particularly Southern California.

"With Judge Taft elected I will begin work soon on the Arizona & California Railroad, which is sure to prove an important feeder to Los Angeles, and would place several hundred men at work. With the election of Bryan I would be in doubt as to my action. I honestly believe that we would have a period of depression lasting over a considerable space of time if Mr. Bryan was elected President," he concluded.

VERY SHORT STRIKE.

Ice Wagon Drivers Agree to Arbitration and Return to Work to Save Jobs.

The strike of the ice-wagon drivers and helpers employed by the Los Angeles Ice and Cold Storage Company was a failure. Night before last a delegation of the unionites made a demand upon the company to withdraw inspectors who had been appointed to see that customers got full-weight. Sixty employees, members of Ice Wagon Drivers' and Helpers' Union, No. 251, declared they would leave in a body, if the company did not yield. Much to their surprise, the company steadfastly refused to countermand its order. Thereupon the laborites called a strike.

But when the men began to realize that the slow season is fast approaching, and that scores of men can be obtained to fill their jobs, all decided yesterday to go back to work. In order to preserve a semblance of the dignity of the union, the men stated that they would submit their grievance to "arbitration." The officers of the company agreed to arbitrate—if there is anything to arbitrate about—and a definite understanding will be reached by Tuesday.

The company does not propose to be caught again in danger of a tie-up by a strike and will make preparations to fill the place of every laborite, if the walking delegates call another strike next week. Absolutely no concessions will be made for the officers of the company believe it would be very unwise to allow the unionites to dictate how they shall run the business.

The abortive strike resulted from an order made by General Manager J. C. McKinley, that inspectors accompany the drivers on their rounds in order to insure full weight and guard against overcharging. "The men worked as usual, and we had no trouble," Manager McKinley said last night. "We wish to be perfectly fair with our employees, and will always agree to arbitration, if there is any serious conflict between the officers and men. If there is anything to arbitrate, they are welcome to discuss it. If the men leave, their places will be at once filled. We do not anticipate any further trouble."

ESCORTED BY VAQUEROS.

Buffalo Bill and His Rough Riders in Parade—Wild West Hospitality.

Members of the Vaquero Club were the guests of Col. W. F. Cody at Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon. In the morning a troupe of the local riders waited upon Buffalo Bill, who received them in the show grounds. Shortly after 10 o'clock Mayor Harper arrived and Col. Cody was presented.

With riders representing every nation following the carriage and vaqueros in front, the parade moved out from the park. The line of march took in the fashionable residence quarter and later the business section. After the parade Col. Cody was escorted to the show grounds by the vaqueros, who were guests at the dinner spread in the show "grub tent." Following the dinner the local riders were given a section of the grand stand for the afternoon performance. In the afternoon and evening performances there were great crowds in attendance and there was much enthusiasm, while Col. Cody was greeted in the warmest and most cordial manner. The bright sun and balmy weather helped to make all the more enjoyable the attractive exhibition.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West will open in San Bernardino today and then jump to Phoenix, Ariz.

IT IS TO LAUGH! TOMMY CITED FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Foreman of Grand Jury Proceeds Against Great Exposer of Vice Because He Wouldn't Expose Vice. Official Light on Woolwine's Fall.

TOMMY WOOLWINE, the peerless boy prosecutor, was cited for contempt of court yesterday, as a result of his crying "quits" in the middle of his celebrated "investigation."

After all Tommy's large conversation about "me n' the grand jury," the foreman of that body yesterday appealed to Judge James to force Woolwine to tell what he knows; charged him with contempt; asked that he be punished for talking the jurors' desire to be shown.

On the filing of the affidavit by E. W. Jones, the foreman, setting forth the refusal of Woolwine to testify before the jury, Judge James issued a citation as petitioned.

Tommy is ordered to appear next Monday before Judge James and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt or answer the question. The affidavit sets forth the details of the painful proceedings of Thursday before the jury, when Dist. Atty. Fredericks, having "fired" the young man, subpoenaed him as a witness to tell about "vice."

The shorthand reports of the sworn testimony show that Tommy was exceedingly haughty, but finally confessed he didn't know anything at all about it except by hearsay. He distributed a liberal amount of high-sounding language about "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial," but would not enlighten the jury about "vice."

He absolutely refused to give the jury any information as to where they might learn about the "vice" or to state the sources of his alleged information, upon which he based his woolly charges.

In fact, the illustrious young crusader showed the attitude that might have been expected of one of the accused. He twisted, and turned, and dodged, and defied, and grabbed at technicalities.

The grand jury not to be made ridiculous by a peevish boy, have themselves made a legal demand that T. Woolwine "make good."

Woolwine will not be allowed to shoot off a bombshell or a stink pot under the whole city administration and then announce that he's mad and won't play any more, and leave his charges smoking and smelling.

He will not be placed under arrest; the citation does not call for it. On the filing of the grand jury foreman's petition, Judge James issued the order as follows:

"Affidavit having been made and filed by E. W. Jones, foreman of the grand jury now sitting in this court, that T. L. Woolwine, a city of Los Angeles, having been subpoenaed to appear before said grand jury, has refused to answer certain questions then and there propounded to him by said grand jury, it is now, therefore, ordered that a citation issue requiring said T. L. Woolwine to appear before this court October 19 at 10 o'clock to show cause why an order should not be made requiring him to answer such questions. Citation issued and delivered to the Sheriff for service."

The matter was turned over to the Sheriff, who notified Woolwine to be present in Judge James's court Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

THE AFFIDAVIT.

Following is the affidavit of Foreman Jones of the grand jury, telling how Woolwine fell down:

"THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles. In re Thomas Lee Woolwine, refusing to answer questions. State of California, County of Los Angeles, ss."

THE GUANAJUILLITO SILVER mine, in Mexico, which the legends of four centuries have named as the richest mine in the world, is to be reopened by American energy. Cortez, the conqueror of Mexico, seized it, but since 1510 the galleries have been hidden below the muddy waters of a small lake. Now the Castellano Consolidated Mines Company will try to drain off this water and work the mine.

L. B. Godin, manager of the company, makes the announcement of his company's intention and tells the old tale of the wonders of the mine which, for generations, has stirred the blood of treasure seekers the world over. He will leave his friends in Los Angeles for Tepic, some time next month and begin the tremendous task before him.

It is not the first attempt that has been made to carry off the waters that, for so many years have been protecting this buried treasure of the ancient Aztecs. Thousands of dollars have been spent by adventurers—and spent in vain. The waters have kept their secret despite the efforts of the best machinery in the hands of the most competent engineers. The latest effort may fail—but if it succeeds, says Mr. Godin, the owners of the property will be repaid a thousand-fold for their time and the money they have invested.

Legend has it that the man who shall attempt to drain the old Guanajuillito and rob it of its treasures, will meet an untimely death. The natives who first worked the mine, in a crude way, were murdered by the followers of Cortez. The successors of these, in turn, were killed by the native Mexicans, and the mine was abandoned. The Spaniards, who were working the mine were attacked and driven from the mine with terrific loss of life. So sudden was the attack that the workmen were compelled to leave their tools in the various drifts, as Mr. Longenecker found when he entered the first drift ten years ago.

Godin snags his finger at these childish beliefs and says that he will the next year he will have the old Guanajuillito as dry as a bone and all of its treasures revealed for the London corporation for which he labors.

Two electric sinking pumps, which will throw 600 gallons of water each minute, night and day, will be installed at the old mine. Ample electrical power is furnished by a turbine water power plant, owned by the company.

Mr. Godin says it will be necessary to sink the present mine shaft, which goes down 200 feet, and then dig a distance deeper and then tap the many galleries of the old mine which will be above the bottom of the existing shaft. The shaft will be driven from the lateral shaft into the bottom of the big pit where the electric pumps can reach it.

BIRD, BIRD!

MAN-HUNTER GETS CANARY.

MARTIN AGUIRRE IN PURSUIT OF JAIL-BREAKER.

The Tale of a Little Girl's Lost Pet and the Chase the Bird Led a Fat Man, a Gardener, a Grocer Boy and a Deputy Sheriff—Exciting Scenes Near Courthouse.

Martin Aguirre, famous as a man hunter and a daring early-day sheriff, led a successful hunt and cry after a little girl's pet canary yesterday.

The same cat-like quickness and cunning that was the dread of the gun men here in the old days proved the undoing of the runaway, canary—a trembling, frightened little thing.

The little girl, who lives in an upper flat on North Broadway, opened the cage a bit too wide when she put in the bird seed. The sky looked very blue and the air was very soft—so there was another jail break.

She came down Temple street crying bitterly. The little bird was fluttering down Temple street, and the little girl came running down the street—falling and picking herself up again with a torn pinafore.

When she tried to coax her pet to wait for her, the sound of her sobbing got mixed up with her coaxing.

Finally, as a dog came along the canary made a frenzied leap into the air and its unused wings carried it in a crazy little flutter up to the top of the little wall that surrounds the Courthouse.

The little girl sat down on the curb below and cried bitterly. Her appeal was spotted on the sidewalk.

One of the Courthouse gardeners dropped his lawn mower and advanced stealthily upon the unsuspecting fugitive from behind. He was stopped in the street below, and the two men on the street watched the pursuit with eager interest.

Just as the gardener reached out to grab the canary, the little bird gave a spasmodic flutter, and got out of reach further along the sidewalk.

"I don't want to make so much noise," shrieked the grocer's boy reprovingly at the gardener.

So saying, he almost ran out of the wagon and made a rush for the steps of the Courthouse. Another workman from the White memorial statue joined in the chase.

Two or three pedestrians stopped on the sidewalk just under the canary. One of them held out his hat, as though he expected the bird to alight and drop off; the other merely waited.

The gardener and the workman on the terrace were advancing with the stealthy tread of Zulu trackers, when an agitated fat man, bare-headed and in a striped suit, puffed down the terrace wall, and caught the canary.

"Catch him! I catch him!" he bellowed.

When he was about fifty yards away, the frightened creature upon the wall took flight, despairingly. It shot up into the air, but its feeble strength seemed to give way and it fluttered down to the sidewalk like a bit of paper.

The whole hue and cry rushed excitedly down from the Courthouse terrace after it. The fat man, who was a blonde man, he charged down the steps and up the street like a runaway horse. Just behind him came the sobbing little girl, and the others streamed out in the rear.

The bird lay trembling in a little yellow spot on the sidewalk. The fat man flung himself upon it with a roar like a triumphant bull, but the bird slipped out between his fingers. Filled with rage, he ran up the street.

Martin Aguirre, in action he makes one think of a mountain lion gathering for a spring.

The bird had flown to the other side of the street and lay against the wall, almost dead with fear.

Martin came running along the sidewalk with the head of a cat. The little girl stopped still in the middle of the road—wonder written on her tear-stained face.

When opposite the bird, Martin suddenly dashed his sombrero over the canary with a quickness never seen in an American. One hand deftly slipped under the head of the fat little bird was a prisoner recaptured.

The little girl took her prodigal tenderly from the deputy sheriff's hand, holding and crying over him.

ACCIDENTAL COINCIDENCE.

Unlucky Carrolls Got Acquainted in Manner to Cement Friendship and Bones.

Patrick Carroll and Thomas Carroll are in the Receiving Hospital, each severely, possibly fatally, injured.

The Carrolls were struck by the same cars, thrown by one directly in the path of another, at the same time, at the same place. Both were under the influence of liquor, were carried to the hospital in the same wagon, and are in the same ward, suffering from similar injuries.

The Carrolls are not relatives, never met before they were up in the air together, when knocked fifty feet by the second car, and never even heard of each other.

Patrick Carroll is a laborer living at No. 338 Madison street. He is married and has three children. Thomas Carroll is a boiler-maker, and lives at the Percy House, Ninth and Hill streets.

Last night they attempted to cross the street at Eighth and Main. According to Patrolman Connelly, the men walked directly in front of a north-bound car, and the fender threw both men directly in front of a south-bound car.

The circus car was crowded, and going at high speed. By a desperate effort the motorman managed to jam down the brakes in time to prevent running over the bodies, which were tossed fifty feet when struck. The injured men were lying across the track when the car came to a stop within a few feet of them.

Patrick Carroll sustained a fracture of both bones of the lower leg, a fracture of the left arm, and a dislocated left shoulder. His face and head were terribly lacerated, and he is probably injured internally.

Thomas Carroll sustained a fracture of the left shoulder blade and a fracture of a rib on the left side. He also is believed to be injured internally.

SPEND MORE ON IRRIGATION.

OFFICER OF TRANS-MISSISSIPPI CONGRESS NAMES SUM.

Says That More Railroads and Increased Markets Are California's Greatest Commercial Needs at Present—South America a Splendid Field for West, He Adds.

J. B. Case, former president of the Trans-Mississippi Congress, one of its executive officers for the coming year, has been touring California to investigate the needs and opportunities of this section, and is now a guest at the Alexandria.

"I am convinced," said he last night, "that the Reclamation Service is going to degree, which will result in a degree of development that I have visited many of the projects and their works are marvelous. Already nearly $2,000,000 outlay is planned for the territory immediately tributary to Los Angeles and something like $75,000,000 for the Trans-Mississippi project.

"I am in favor of expending $200,000,000, if necessary, in order that every drop of water falling on the western lands may be utilized in increasing fertility. There is but one Southern California with climate, soil and surroundings that make an ideal spot. But you are hampered with the vast amount of untitled land and by the lack of transportation facilities. Your relatives have a constant demand for cars and are seeking a wider market. You need more railroads, more irrigation and a means of marketing the increased products of the soil."

NEED LARGER MARKETS.

"The Western States have developed faster than the transportation facilities and the markets. The population and business have grown more than 50 per cent. in the past fifteen years, while the railway mileage has increased only sixty per cent. Ten thousand miles of new railway track could be used in the next year west of the Mississippi and we ought to have it."

"The matter of larger and more numerous markets has come to me from Chambers of Commerce and individual fruit growers in all the towns we have visited from San Francisco to Los Angeles."

"We need particularly a South American outlet, and I am endeavoring to secure a national commission of western business men to visit South American countries and interest them in California's fruits and wines and in the products of our Western States. We ought to have all of that trade, especially when the Panama canal is opened, from both coasts of South America. The proposition is received with approval throughout the West and will come in excellently with the Pan-American Congress which is proposed to hold in San Francisco two years hence."

"The thousand business men are members of the Trans-Mississippi Congress and their work during the coming year will be in the direction of greater irrigation, reclamation, transportation and trade expansion."

Mr. Case is accompanied by J. W. Crech, a banker of Kansas City, C. M. Horner, editor of the Abilene (Kan.) Daily Reflector, and Mrs. Case. They will spend one more week touring the southern portion of the States preparatory to reporting to the advisory board of the congress.

LOVED A GEISHA GIRL.

In the Japanese colony it is said that Shintani loved one of the light-eyed Geisha girls of the San Pedro district, and lavished on her his savings; but search by friends has failed to disclose this woman's identity.

Shintani lately "acted a little funny" some of his friends say. His memory was growing poor, toward the end. He did not always recognize friends when he met them face to face.

The night he disappeared, he was returning from a cheap theater. It was after 11 o'clock. Meeting some acquaintances, he told them he would be home in an hour. Next morning, his relatives have a constant demand for cars and are seeking a wider market. You need more railroads, more irrigation and a means of marketing the increased products of the soil.

It was only yesterday that the letters were discovered in the telescope bag S. Shintani, a cousin, K. Ishida, and a Japanese friend, who have spent much time and money seeking Shintani in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Sacramento.

TRUST SOOTHYSAYER.

One of the curiosities of the Japanese man-hunt is the fact that Shintani's friends set much store on the word of the Japanese soothsayer, Yoshida, on First street, near San Pedro. The oracle consulted his Book of Fate and this was the answer: "Suicide. Body northwest of town. Found, maybe."

MANY ORIENTALS GOING.

Thirty-six Chinese and Japanese to Be Taken North Tomorrow for Deportation.

Deputy United States Marshal Durkin will leave tomorrow for San Francisco in charge of twenty-two Chinese, recently ordered deported. Harry Place, Deputy Marshal at San Diego, will take five Chinamen from that city. Nine Japanese who were found to be without passports will be sent north at the same time, in charge of an immigration inspector.

There is no Federal law governing the admission of Japanese into this country, but simply a tacit understanding between this country and Japan that coolies will not be given passports entitling them to land in the United States. If the little brown men are found to be without the necessary documents, they are sent to their own country without any formalities similar to that employed in Chinese cases.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The City Attorney holds that legal notices of the Sunset boulevard improvement must be posted in Echo Park lake and the Ivanhoe reservoir.

Sabino Guzman, charged with the murder of Agapito Garcia on August 15, was placed on trial in Judge Jamison's court yesterday.

J. C. Quintin, charged with uttering a fictitious check on the German-American Savings Bank on September 1, was bound over to the Superior Court, under $1000 bail, by Justice Summerfield.

Mrs. Lillian Salsbury of Hollywood was arraigned before the Lunacy Commission and her examination was set for Monday.

The charge of murder was dismissed yesterday against Mrs. Margaret Finn by Police Justice Chambers, who found that the woman was irresponsible when she shot J. E. Mahaffey.

AT THE CITY HALL.

POST NOTICES ON BELLBUOYS?

CITY ATTORNEY HOLDS WATER GIVES NO EXCUSE.

Sunset Boulevard District Has Streets That Pass Through Echo Park Lake and Ivanhoe Reservoir and Notices Must Be Posted Every One Hundred Feet.

Having Sunset boulevard may have to be accomplished legally with a diving suit and a bellbuoy, if the City Engineer follows rigidly the instructions of E. R. Young, Assistant City Attorney. This is because certain streets pass through Echo Park Lake and the Ivanhoe reservoir, and, under the law, as construed by Mr. Young, a notice must be posted every 100 feet. In all 8000 notices are to be posted in the big assessment district. In following the streets in this work the engineer found that one street disappears in Echo Park Lake and reappears at the other side. But it doesn't disappear legally. The distance between disappearance and reappearance is several hundred feet. Consequently he asked a legal opinion as to whether notices must be posted between points. "Post notices every 100 feet, according to the law," is his answer. Ditto as to Ivanhoe reservoir.

Now the problem is how the notices shall be posted. Ordinarily they are tacked on telegraph poles, sheds, trees and such available things as appear convenient. On a waste of water, the engineer finds nothing to tack to, although tacking is always a good thing on a waste of water. Whether to drive poles in the water or to anchor bell-buoys supporting posts with the notices tacked on are things the engineer's office is wrestling with.

Even if the problem of posting is solved must the city maintain a ferry from point of disappearance to point of reappearance so that interested taxpayers may proceed along the highways over the water in order to see what they say? This may be the question for the attorneys. For the streets are dedicated, were dedicated before the water came, and are not abandoned.

GETTING MORE NAMES.

CHARTER AMENDMENT PETITION While City Attorney Hewitt is in Washington presenting the telephone case to the Supreme Court, canvassers for the Municipal League are at work getting signatures for a supplementary petition to the one which is pending before the City Council for the submission of charter amendments. This has given rise to a story that Mr. Hewitt may have given a tip to this organization that he would hold that the Council, under its discretionary powers, as construed from the constitution by Hewitt, may receive a supplementary petition.

The original petition lacked 1100 names to make it mandatory on the Council and the supplementary petition is intended to supply the deficiency. Members of the league say they have no "tip" that the decision of the attorney will be for their way, and are merely getting the additional names in case he does so hold.

The City Clerk will begin the work of verifying the referendum and supplementary petition filed by P. H. Solomon for the dance-hall interests, Monday. For that reason his report will not reach the Council before October 28. If it becomes effective the Sunday Rest League will present its initiative petition for a Sunday ordinance incorporating all the extreme measures advocated when the present ordinance was accepted.

Councilmen are getting ready for a genuine, for sure, wrestling match with the intricacies and idiosyncracies of the initiative and referendum, understanding it to be one of the most unadaptable political implements ever invented. Just where they will end they do not predict.

"Scotty" Allen's Rights.

John Scott Allen, otherwise "Scotty," Democratic power of the Seven Ward, notified the Board of Public Works, through his attorney yesterday, that his patent rights on an electric insulator were being infringed. Allen patented the insulator two years ago and now says it is being manufactured by the M. L. Lockyer Company of Victor, N. Y., and that the Board of Public Works is a liberal buyer for aqueduct uses. The board has already in use 700 insulators and has ordered as many more. In the aggregate the lines along the aqueduct will require 30,000 or more. Allen declares, and he says they are worth 55 cents each. His notice to the board was to save his rights and he may soon institute suit against the company that manufactures them for an injunction and an accounting. The insulator is used for high voltage.

Fishy Question.

If the prisoners in the City Jail eat fish on Fridays it will be after the Supplies Committee of the Council has decided a knotty legal problem between two bidders received yesterday. The committee advertised for bids for supplying the city with fish—dead and dressed—and in response Young's market bid 4 3/4 cents a pound and the Santa Monica Fish Company 4 1/4 cents. But the Santa Monica bidder is a Japanese firm composed of K. Masamoto and Y. Suzuki. This suggested their legality of awarding a contract for city supplies to aliens and the committee postponed action. The city does not use much fish since the seals at Westlake Park were eliminated with their voracious appetites.

Liquor Zone Ordinances.

Because the ordinance enlarging the retail liquor zone, which has been pending before the Council since last April, is to come before it next Monday, the Church Federation has sounded the alarm among its members and has asked all pastors to be present at the meeting. The ordinance enlarges the zone by adding all that territory between Grand avenue and the river between Seventh and Ninth streets.

While the ordinance, because of its many postponements, is on the calendar for Monday, the intention of the Council is to postpone action in the hope that the Supreme Court will pass on the ordinance which attempted to exclude wholesale liquor dealers from a certain district.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DEALS DEATH WHILE DRUNK.

STORY OF TRAGEDY AT CAMP OF LABORERS.

Accused, on Trial for Murder, Claims He Did Not Know What He Was Doing When He Fired the Fatal Shot—Witnesses Testify to His Intoxication.

Sabino Guzman, a laborer who shot and killed Agapito Garcia at Sherman on August 15, was placed on trial for murder in Judge Jamison's court yesterday. He contends that he is at most, guilty of involuntary manslaughter, as the gun play which resulted in Garcia's death took place during a drunken carouse when he (Guzman) did not know what he was doing.

C. Ray Dixon, a milkman who witnessed the firing of the fatal shot from the back of the cab of his delivery truck, testified that he was delivering milk to the railroad laborers living in bunk houses near Sherman when Guzman rushed from one of the cabins in an intoxicated condition and discharged his revolver.

"He staggered out of the cabin uttering cries," continued the witness, "and as he came out he fired one shot that passed by my horse. Then he turned and fired through the open door of the cabin. I heard a yell and nine or ten Mexicans came rushing out, as Guzman staggered away. I went into one of the cabins and found that a bullet had penetrated two of the corrugated walls and had struck Guzman in the breast while he was lying in his bunk."

"After we had cared for the wounded man we made a search for Guzman and found him lying unconscious in a patch of tules some distance from the cabin. O. B. Moore, C. R. Smith and others took him in charge and I lashed his hands behind him and put him on my horse, to deliver him to the authorities. He uttered cries and was unconscious of his deed."

Juan Rodriguez and José Herrera said they were in the cabin when the shot was fired, and that a party of Mexicans had been engaged in much wine drinking there and that as soon as they heard the shots they ran away from the place. They did not see Guzman fire the shots, but heard that Garcia had died of his wounds at the County Hospital some days after he was hit. The trial will be continued Monday morning.

GUN PLAY CHARGED.

CHECK CAUSES TROUBLE. J. C. Quintin, a mechanic arrested on September 5, on the charge of having uttered a fictitious $1750 check on the German-American Savings Bank, was held to answer to the Superior Court by Justice Summerfield yesterday, and committed to the County Jail in default of $1000 bail.

M. Kaufman, who keeps a store at No. 146 North Main street, said that Quintin came into his place in an intoxicated condition and offered him a check purporting to be signed by Burke Machinery Company, a concern said not to exist.

"I refused to cash the check and Quintin went into a rage," the witness said. "But he came back three times, each time more ugly at my refusal to cash the check. The last time, he drew a revolver and pointed it at me, saying: 'Now, I've got you.' As he left, I ran out and notified an officer, who arrested him."

Testimony was given that the check was found, crumpled up, on the street a short distance from Kaufman's store. Quintin says he remembers nothing about the matter.

HUSBAND DEAD, HEALTH GONE.

As a sequel to the death of A. H. Salsbury, a Hollywood expressman, who committed suicide six months ago by shooting himself, Mrs. Lillian Salsbury, his widow, who has suffered from nervous prostration since the tragedy, was examined by the lunacy commission yesterday.

It is said that Salsbury's act was due to the nervous strain and worry that his wife's long continued illness caused him. Her friends say she suffers from delusions of persecution, and is possessed by a desire to roam the streets continually. As her condition shows no signs of improvement, they desire to have her placed in an institution.

Mrs. Salsbury had no witnesses present yesterday, and as she desired her relatives to appear at her trial, the court continued the hearing until Monday afternoon, remanding the woman to the County Hospital in the meantime.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS. RAZOR CASE. By consent of counsel, Justice Summerfield yesterday continued until this morning the examination of Glenn Russell, the negro charged with assault with intent to murder Conductor J. C. Garner on a Pasadena car Thursday afternoon. The conductor was slashed with a razor during a dispute over car fare. Bail was fixed at $5000 and the negro was committed to the County Jail. Russell has served terms in Folsom, San Quentin and in the City Jail.

WIFE ACCUSES. A. P. Baird gave $250 bail in Justice Summerfield's court yesterday for appearance at his trial Thursday morning, on a charge of threats to kill his wife, Mrs. Francis E. P. Baird, on October 15. It is said he called on the woman, from whom he has been separated for two years, to settle a payment of money demanded of him by her.

JURY ACQUITS. C. Piercy, accused of assault with intent to murder Mrs. Glennie C. Piercy on July 15, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in Judge Wilbur's court.

NOT BIGAMIST. Jacob Pearlman, accused of bigamy by a Detroit (Mich.) woman, who styled herself Mrs. Ethel Pearlman, was discharged from custody after examination by Justice Summerfield yesterday. The complaining witness claimed when the case was announced, but soon recovered and left the courtroom with friends, while Pearlman left with the woman he married in Los Angeles in June, 1907.

ASKS DAMAGES. Mrs. Jennie Smith yesterday filed in the Superior Court a personal injury suit against Walter Savage, owner of the Kentucky block at No. 29 South Figueroa street, for 1300 damages. She asserts that while calling on friends on the premises owned by Savage, she fell from an unrailed landing to the ground, sustaining a sprained ankle, and severe shock.

INCORPORATION. Articles of incorporation were filed with the County Clerk yesterday by the County Securities Company, capital stock $75,000.

BOND ENGRAVING. By consent of counsel, Judge Bordwell yesterday continued until Friday morning next the hearing on the writ of prohibition secured by counsel for W. H. Carlson, directing Justice Selph not to hold the banker's preliminary examination on charges of embezzlement and false entries until the court shall have passed on the sufficiency of the proceedings in his case.

CARLSON TRIAL. Judge Conrey yesterday continued until November 6 the hearing on the writ of prohibition secured by counsel for W. H. Carlson, directing Justice Selph not to hold the banker's preliminary examination on charges of embezzlement and false entries until the court shall have passed on the sufficiency of the proceedings in his case.

STREET SPEAKING. The habeas corpus proceedings brought in behalf of Mrs. Anna Smith, a Salvation Army follower arrested for street speaking, were continued by J. de Bordwell yesterday, on the request of counsel, until Friday morning next. At that time the court will hear argument on the validity of the ordinance governing street speaking. Mrs. Smith was released from jail on $25 bail, pending the decision of what is intended to be a test case.

BURGLAR SENTENCED. W. Melton, who admitted that he has served a penitentiary term for burglary, was sentenced to four years in Folsom yesterday by Judge Wilbur for burglarizing E. Seaberg's house on July 15.

VISITS MALIBU. Judge F. F. Oster of San Bernardino, who is sitting on the bench at the Department of Justice during the trial of the suits brought to determine the ownership of the road over the Malibu ranch, visited the disputed territory yesterday. Attorney Milliken, representing the Rindge estate, and Attorney Dunnegan, for the people, accompanied the court.

INFERIOR COURTS.

MARGARET FINN IS ACQUITTED.

CHARGE OF MURDER DISMISSED AT FIRST HEARING.

Police Justice Finds That She Was Hysterical When She Shot Mahaffey and Did Not Realize Act—Woman Hurried to Hospital and About to Become a Mother.

Margaret Finn, charged with the murder of J. E. Mahaffey, was discharged yesterday after a long preliminary examination before Justice Chambers in the Police Court.

The verdict was expected by many. During the several days of its hearing anticipated the dismissal of the charge against the woman.

The details of the case and the woman's condition were much sympathetic. When the justice handed down his decision yesterday Mrs. Finn was not in court. She was in the Good Samaritan Hospital, where she was hurried late Thursday night. The arrest of the woman was almost hourly and the suffering of the little woman before her collapse, in her effort to remain in court until the conclusion of the preliminary examination, was pitiful to see.

"The prosecution in this case has failed to show that the woman was not mentally unbalanced at the time she shot Mahaffey," said Justice Chambers in giving his opinion. "The defense, on the other hand, proved beyond any doubt, by the testimony of witnesses, that Mrs. Finn was hysterical at the time of the killing and probably did not know what she was doing. Her condition just prior to, and following, the shooting showed that she was in such a peculiar nervous state that she did not know what she was doing. Even if she had known, she was not sane at the time of the shooting. To my mind it is only too evident that she did not know what she was doing and was probably mentally unbalanced when she shot Mahaffey."

There was silence in the room as Justice Chambers finished reading his verdict, and then a woman, a friend of the defendant, began to sob softly. Mahaffey was shot at Seventh street and Broadway on the night of July 15. At the time of the shooting Mrs. Finn was crowded, and Mrs. Finn walked directly up behind the man who was accused of having shot her and shot him twice through the body.

In Mrs. Finn's statement to Detective Ritch, following the shooting, she said: "I was talking to my brother when I heard some one enter the apartment-house and come up the steps. I waited for a few moments and then I stepped into the hall. Mr. Mahaffey had just placed a suitcase on the top step and was hurrying away. He called to me and I went to him. He had promised to marry me and had told him of my condition. When he left the suitcase there on the steps I saw that he had returned to me everything I had ever given him. I asked my brother to go after him and bring him back so that we could talk things over."

"My brother hurried out and I feared that Mr. Mahaffey, who was a big man, might harm him, and I opened the suitcase. There was a revolver in it and I took it and went out on the street. I walked toward him and when I got close I fired. I suppose, for they told me I shot him twice. I do not remember of having fired and did not awake to the realization of the act until some time later."

A dozen witnesses at the trial stated that Mrs. Finn appeared dazed just before the shooting and that she acted in a strange manner.

The prosecution spent five days in an effort to show that Mahaffey came to his death as a result of the bullet wounds in his body. But Dr. Campbell, the autopsy surgeon, was not present at the trial, and could swear as Mrs. Finn is reported to be in a critical condition.

CONGRESSIONAL FUND PUBLIC. CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee today made public the list of campaign contributions of $100 or over. They aggregate $12,744, while smaller contributions bring the total to approximately $20,000. James T. Lloyd, chairman of the committee, in making public the Congressional campaign fund, stated that in order to complete the work the committee is in urgent need of at least $15,000.

HOPELESS. DIES FOR A WOMAN'S SAKE.

DESERVED BY SWEETHEART HE HANGS HIMSELF.

His Romance Shattered by Faithlessness of Woman He Left in Germany, Life Had Nothing Further to Offer Frank Reichardt, a Local Cabinet Maker.

Because his sweetheart married another man, Frank Reichardt, a cabinet maker, employed by the Murray Showcase Company, at Fourth and San Pedro streets, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by hanging himself to the head of his bed with a piece of chalk line.

He has been brooding for some time over the fact that his betrothed, whom he left in Germany five years ago to come to this country and make his fortune, had gone back on him. Two days ago he received a letter announcing his marriage to another man and yesterday noon he hanged himself.

Reichardt had no relatives in this country, according to Martin Novotny, with whom the dead man boarded, at No. 2416 Griffith avenue, but lived alone in a furnished room at No. 619 East Thirtieth street, where his body was found.

Mrs. Novotny was the first person who saw him alive. She said that he came to her home at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and said that he had quit work. He failed to come at supper and she sent her husband to see if her boarder was sick and he discovered the body.

Among the effects were letters showing that he has a brother and sister in Berlin. Since arriving in this country he has been employed by the German and New Orleans. A bank book showed that he had $600 in deposit in the German bank in New York, Rochester and New Orleans. A bank book showed that he had $600 in deposit in the German bank in New York, Rochester and New Orleans.

He came to this city eight months ago and bought his home soon after paying $400 down. He lived alone and for several weeks has been showing signs of a nervous breakdown. Two weeks ago he was arrested for threatening to kill himself in a physician's office on Spring street. At that time he blamed his illness on the fact that he had been betrothed to a woman, Ben, had been unfaithful to her vows.

The body was removed to Pierce Bros. undertaking parlors.

AGAINST SUGAR COMPANY.

Interlocutory Decree Granted Timothy Carroll in Fight With Los Alamitos Concern.

An interlocutory decree was made orally yesterday by Judge Wellborn of the United States Circuit Court in the patent case of Timothy Carroll against the Los Alamitos Sugar Company. The court found in favor of the complainant on all the counts. The amount of damages probably will be referred to a special master. By agreement of attorneys for the complainant, the injunction against the defendant was not to be operative until next season.

Carroll is the inventor of an apparatus for quickly unloading sugar beets at a factory. A number of companies have paid him a royalty for years, but the Los Alamitos concern used a machine they claimed was not an infringement of the Carroll patent. The case has been on trial all the week. Townsend, Lyon & Hackley and Joseph B. Scott were counsel for the complainant and Attorney White of San Francisco represented the defendant.

GLENDALF.

GLENDALF, Oct. 15.—The Tuesday Afternoon Club will have quarters in the new Hurt Block, the library rooms having proved too small. The initial meeting of the club, which is the pioneer one of San Fernando Valley and also the largest, was held this week.

Mrs. Edgar W. Pack, the new president of the club, which is the pioneer one of a good club president and of ideal club workers. She outlined the work to be taken up along the lines of civics, forestry, public parks, philanthropy and the juvenile court. The list of officers and committees include the names of some of the most prominent women in the valley. The study will be art, literature and history.

FOOD FOR A YEAR.

Meats..... 300 lbs.
Milk..... 240 lbs.
Butter..... 100 lbs.
Eggs..... 27 doz.
Vegetables..... 500 lbs.

This represents a fair ration for a man for one year.

But some people eat and eat and get grow thinner. This means a defective digestion and unsuitable food. A one-dollar bottle of equals in nourishing properties ten pounds of meat. Your physician can tell you how it does it.

Scott's Emulsion

"I want some more."—Oliver Twist.

Give the Boy All He Wants

Give the boy all he wants—a second dish—a third dish—it can't hurt him. H-O is not the ordinary "rolled oats" that has to be cooked sixteen hours before it is fit to eat.

H-O is steam-cooked oatmeal—the only cooked oatmeal sold. It has been cooked three hours under pressure at a high temperature before you get it. Ten to fifteen minutes' boiling prepares it perfectly for your table—and then you have a delicious porridge of clean, separate, tender kernels. Ask your grocer for H-O.

are recognized as the highest grade of gas ranges made for efficiency and durability. This is the range that has been counterfeited in name for several years, and a fortune has been spent trying to prohibit other manufacturers from using the name "Jewell," until finally the United States Court of Appeals has given a final decision against these manufacturers.

It is the only gas range that will successfully compete with cheap wood or coal, and as a consequence, Jewell ranges have to compete with other cheap fuel for forced to sell at a low price. The wonderful efficiency of this range is what prompts other manufacturers to appropriate the name "Jewell."

They cost no more than the inferior ranges, and have every known gas saving device—therefore are wonders of economy and efficiency. A Jewell burner is indestructible except by breakage.

TAFT AND SHERMAN.

For President. For Vice-President.

Editorial Points

We think it would be wise for the balloon to learn to fly before it attempts to race.

It may be remarked that Mr. Bryan, as well as the campaign, is drawing to a close.

It is conceded that Mr. Bryan will carry Mississippi with the usual number of shotguns.

If the Kaiser shall now rattle his saber, nobody ought to find fault with him. He has reasons.

After Mr. Taft has jumped on the solid South we fail to see how it can escape a few cracks.

We think that about all Bryan will have done is to ruin his drawing capacity even as a Chautauqua lecturer.

It looks to us as though there is a quiet movement afoot to confine Nippon to her original and ancient archipelago.

Evidently Great Britain has no desire to continue her Japanese alliance. All that it resulted in was snubs from the Jap.

Our sympathies, of course, are with the Elkins people, but we have a suspicion that the Savoy family is laughing at them.

France has the money, Russia has the men and England has the ships. It is certainly a combination not to be sneezed at.

Only one subscription of $500 went from California to the Bryan campaign fund. But the State will not follow the check.

If all the Republicans in the South could vote the way they would like to vote, Mr. Taft's tour of that section would not be in vain.

No doubt our American merchants visiting Tokio felt quite at home when they were addressed by Mr. O'Brien and Count K. O'Mura.

At least are the Australians determined that the mastery of the Pacific will not fall into the hands of brown men without a struggle.

The question is, could Great Britain, with Russia and France as auxiliaries, whip Germany, with Austria and Italy as auxiliaries?

The revival in the demand for diamonds is nothing more than might be expected, perhaps, in view of the certainty of Taft's election.

The doctors declare that they can cure drunkenness. If so, the world will be glad to take back everything it ever said against doctors.

We congratulate John Lawrence Sullivan on his fifth anniversary as a total abstainer. He never won a fight that was anywhere near equal to this.

If the country will stop to consider that football will break loose immediately after election, there would not be so much eagerness to have the election over with.

Col. Roosevelt predicted that Taft will carry four more States than the Republicans carried four years ago. Possibly Mr. Taft is visiting those States right now.

Every other nation desires to make an alliance with the United States. For this reason, as much as for any other, the United States will decline to make any alliance.

We don't suppose it will ever happen, but if an alliance were to be formed between China and the United States, we think it would pretty nearly hold down the two sides of the world.

The Japs are apparently determined to so entertain the American sailors that they will not have the heart to believe a word that Capt. Hobson and "Red" Hayes have been saying.

We suggest that all the nations of Europe enter into one great alliance. Then the white dove of peace wouldn't have a thing in the world to do but roost around wherever it pleased.

On the other hand, it is poor business for the Australians to teach their children to hate another race. Hatred will come surely enough without instilling it into the minds of children.

A dispatch states that pourparlers have been opened with Wilbur Wright in England. When he comes home there will be something that tastes even better than that opened with him.

Mrs. Shaw of Boston, who has been accused of taking dew baths when in a nude condition, asserts that no one saw her do it. But a thing like that is a good deal like murder. It will out.

A great deal of the national debt of Great Britain need never be paid. All she is required to do is to pay the interest. But, unless something is done, it will be difficult for the British to do even that.

We notice that May Yohe desires to be divorced in order that she may marry again. We should think that it would pay May to ask for several divorces while she is at it, in order to avoid eternally bothering the courts.

In the vernacular of the United States, all this wild talk on the part of the Duke of the Abruzzi after he crashed on his engagement with Miss Elkins, makes us believe more than ever that he is

DEMOCRATS ON THE DEFENSIVE.

Never has there been a national campaign when the Democratic party has had less reason for asking for a change of administration. There have been no scandals in connection with governmental affairs; no legislation by Congress opposed to the freedom and prosperity of the people; no international relationships that have shown any weakening of the predominant position the United States holds among the nations of the world. On the other hand, the past years have been marked by an unexampled degree of national progress. Industrial conditions have kept pace with the growth of the population under the beneficent influence of the Republican tariff. The exports of the country have trebled within twelve years, while the imports have only about doubled, thus giving the United States a heavy balance in its commercial favor. Our colonial possessions are also growing in prosperity and appreciation of their relationships with the United States. The construction of the Panama Canal has developed no scandals, and the work is being accomplished with unexampled rapidity. Nowhere has there been anything to cause a demand for a change of the government.

As a consequence, the Democrats have been on the defensive. Mr. Bryan has had to lay aside all the past issues he had raised and for which he had declared he had an undying friendship. He has grasped at the straw of bank guarantee of deposits which had been sprung upon the country by the immature politicians of Oklahoma, and which puts a premium on the dishonesty of bank officials. He has allied himself with the men who are demanding the overthrow of court procedure, so that they may practice violence as they choose. He has drawn to his support the trusts that have been shown to be chronic violators of the law. All the elements of discord are allied with the Democratic candidate. The advent of the Democratic party to power in both the administrative and legislative departments would, therefore, result in an industrial cataclysm and a violent shock to the national credit. The only argument in favor of Mr. Bryan's election is that he would be held in leash by a Republican Senate, which is only a confession that he would be a disturber, a visionary occupant of the Presidential office. Only as late as last February Henry Waterson, who, at that distance from the national campaign, could look at candidates with a better clearness of vision than now, said:

"Now, for our part, we see in Mr. Bryan an agreeable lay-preacher who wants to be President, and has shown himself willing to take any old thing for a paramount issue, promising to gain votes enough, all the way from free silver to government ownership of the railways."

Richard Olney, an equally good Democratic authority, characterized Mr. Taft, four years ago, as "the best-equipped and best-trained man who has been proposed by either party for the Presidency in the last seventy years." "The most malignant partisan has not dared to say a word against his ability, his honesty or his unblemished character."

On the record of what he has been and what he is, Mr. Taft ought to be elected President of the United States.

Neither of these testimonials was uttered during the heat or progress of the campaign. They have not been repudiated by their authors. Mr. Taft is the representative of national progress, the supremacy of the law, and of the moral uplift of the nation. On the other hand, Mr. Bryan is a visionary, grasping at any kind of a principle that is new, a political weather-cock that turns and sways with every current of a national campaign. Mr. Taft has never retreated from any principle he has ever advocated, or judicial decision he ever enunciated. On the other hand, Mr. Bryan seeks to cover up and hide under the dust of the campaign about every fact that he has advanced in the past as necessary for the progress of the nation. Looking at the men as they stand, there is no question as to who should be elected President.

THE COMING CONFERENCE.

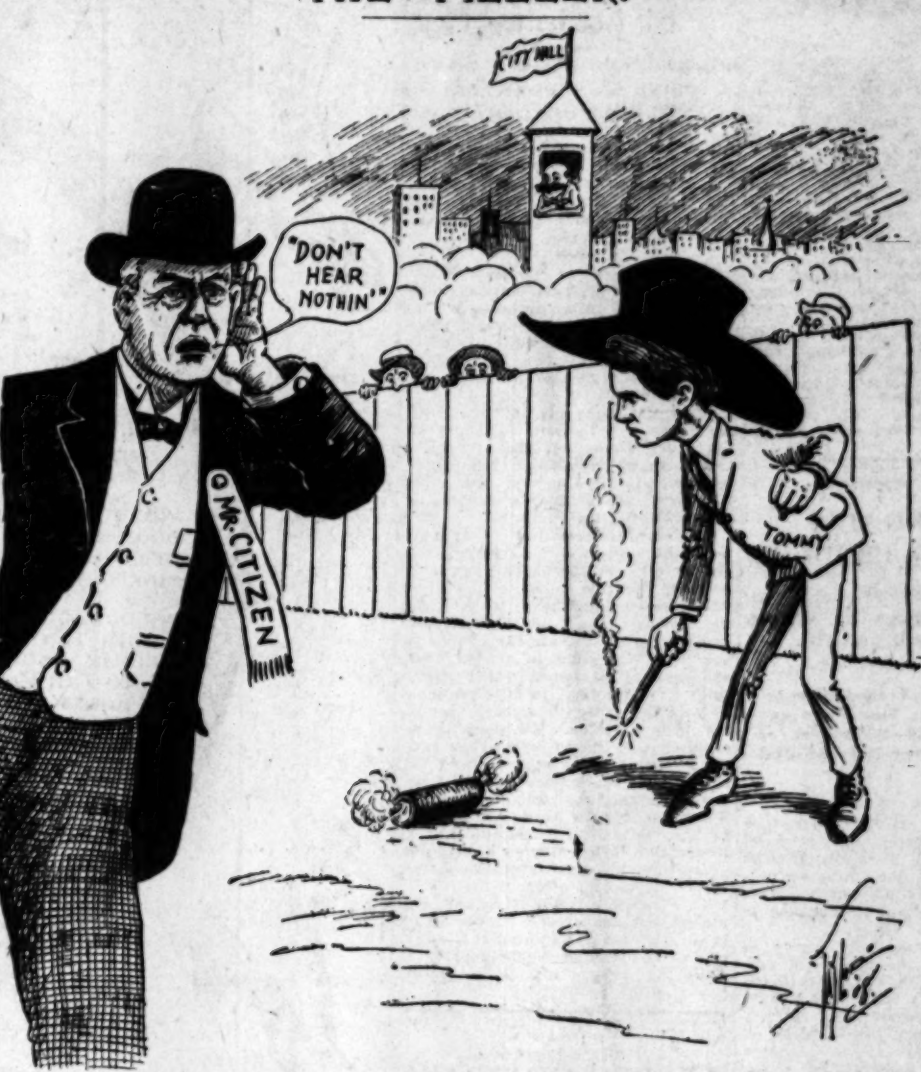

It is, of course, eminently proper that a European conference should try to settle the affairs of the distracted Balkans. But for the prospect of such an assembly, some of the nations concerned would have been at each other's throats before now. Even the assurance of full deliberation and a patient hearing of claims may be insufficient to restrain the fiery warriors of these eastern principalities, who are naturally unable to see why their own emancipation and independence should be made the subject of a foreign conclave. Nor is there any reason why they should view such a meeting of the powers with either hope or confidence. They will remember that the Berlin conference disposed of their liberties as though they were so much merchandise, and that their freedom and their right to exist was made the subject of exchange and barter. Why should they anticipate better consideration at a time when the European stage contains not a single statesman of preeminent ability, and when the tension between the powers is greater than it ever was before?

The task of the approaching conference does, indeed, seem well-nigh hopeless. The course of events cannot be turned backward. No human skill can undo what has been done. It is inconceivable that Austria should restore the provinces that she has seized with such greedy irresponsibility. Indeed, her state of mind is sufficiently indicated by the fact that she declines even to discuss what she considers to be an accomplished and irrevocable fact. She asks, in so many words, that the conference shall exclude from its discussion the very incident that has called the conference into being. Can we imagine that Turkey will acquiesce in a deprivation of territory that goes so far to wipe her off the map as a European power? Is it possible that Bulgaria will forego an independence and a dignity that she has acquired at such risk and with such enthusiasm? And again, is it conceivable that Austria will be allowed so to aggrandize herself without some provision for a corresponding compensation of the other powers? And where is such a compensation to come from?

The attitude of England has already been explained by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons. England refuses to countenance any of the changes of which the last few weeks have been the witness. She cannot recognize any disturbance of the treaty of Berlin, and while thus throwing herself upon the side of Turkey, she places herself in direct opposition to Austria, to Bulgaria, to Serbia and to Crete. That may be a sound diplomatic basis from which to start, but it seems singularly futile in view of events which are already too numerous and too strong to be reversed.

And, meanwhile, the complexities of the situation are increasing. Russia sees her opportunity once more to bring forward claims that have been dormant for a long time, but that are not dead. Mr. Iswolsky, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, who is now in London and in telegraphic communication with all the powers, is understood to have formulated a demand that the forthcoming conference shall include the whole question of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles in its deliberations. Russia has always desired this outlet for her warships, but she has been foiled again and again by a British diplomacy always suspicious of an attempt upon India. In the present state of disaffection, is not a particularly desirable goal for any power just now, and it may be that the bugbear of Russian aggression has considerably lessened of late years. The Anglo-Japanese agreement is in itself an all-sufficient defense of India, and it may be that the closing of the Dardanelles to Russian warships is no longer of supreme importance, now that Russia has no warships left nor any immediate prospect of acquiring them. However, that may be, the consent of the British government to the Russian demand thus to enlarge the scope of the conference suggests an understanding between the two powers, and, on the whole, such an understanding would make for peace, but in the meantime a single rifle shot along the turbulent and excitable frontier might easily precipitate the avalanche. Isolated conflicts have already been reported, and while the violence of the Serbian agitation has been greatly moderated within the last few days, it has given place to a settled determination even more dangerous. Europe is, therefore, a long way from any assurance of peace.

Wonderful Woolwine—the Examiner hero! Picture in the paper every day. Huh!

NO BITTERNESS.

For the first time, perhaps, since James Monroe was elected, we have a campaign on our hands that is practically devoid of bitterness. You don't see men going around with black eyes and bloody noses this year, as a result of political arguments, do you? Well, it is because there is nothing for anybody to get mad about. The whole thing is as peaceful as a Sunday-school picnic.

The people of the United States have resolved not to hate Mr. Bryan, not to throw bricks at him. All they intend to do with the Peerless Leader is to take him gently in hand and set him outside of the breastworks without as much as bursting his suspenders. The operation should not jar Mr. Bryan, because it is not intended to harm him any further than to completely eliminate him from the subsequent proceedings.

The country really owes a debt to Mr. Bryan for bringing about so peaceful a solution of at least one Presidential struggle. He has worked assiduously to create from the ancient fighting Democracy a new Democracy, which is subdued and well-behaved. Under Bryan's leadership, the Democratic party has learned to do what it was never able to do before, namely, to take its medicine without creating an uproar and smashing the bottle.

There are some old-timers, it is true, who regret that the situation is as it is, but the great bulk of the Democracy is satisfied, not to say pleased. They have become enamored of peace and prosperity, and much prefer to let things go as they have been going, even though it becomes necessary for them to vote the Republican ticket, which they have been doing in ever-increasing numbers.

There is nothing to fight about; consequently, there is no fight. There is no occasion for bitterness; consequently there is no bitterness. All there is to it is that the people have resolved to continue in power a party capable of exercising power and which has made the nation the foremost government on earth. That Mr. Bryan has had a personal ambition to jump into the game and sort of upset things will be regarded as something that was merely natural to a man of his temperament, but which was a luxury the country could not afford to indulge him in. What is to be done shall be done merely as a matter of business and without any personal ill-feeling toward the gentleman from Nebraska.

THE REGENERATE CRIMINAL.

We've heard a lot of late about that much-damned individual, the degenerate criminal. Suppose, for a change, we consider the regenerate criminal. But where is this remarkable being to be found? Just turn on the light.

The rays are not confined to the American continent. We may go across to Great Britain, which amuses us by clinging to the customs of its grandmothers—so we say—in order to find evidence of the fact that the legal manufacture of criminals is a crime no longer attributable to the State. It has been truly said that our criminal courts are crime-breeding, that our prisons and reformatories are colleges of crime. They used to say such things of the British penitentiary.

But the adoption across the water of what is called the Borstal system has changed some of that. This system concerns the prison treatment of young offenders. It was first tried in an Irish jail in 1906, and the London Daily Mail tells us that "the net result is that at least 70 per cent. of juvenile offenders are on the way to become useful members of the community."

We are further informed that the system, which is proving successful in England as well as in Ireland, "beyond the dreams of the originators," aims to make the prison, especially for offenders between the ages of 16 and 21, a sort of moral hospital. The youths are taught trades and crafts; they are carefully drilled, humanely taught, well fed and entirely isolated from the older prisoners. They are trained and disciplined, and when their time expires places are found for them, and a new start, unprejudiced by the early mishap, is insured. Boys who went into British prisons deformed in mind and body and dulled in their senses, have passed the stone walls as new-made men, well set up in frame, mentally capable and equipped with a craft. To some extent the Borstal system is extended to include older offenders. Crime with them is often found to be a remedial disease. The idea is sound and illuminating.

HOROSCOPE.

BY COZETTE.

Saturday, October 17, 1908.

For journeys, happy destinations lie; And well inclined are they that sit on high.

Mercury is stationary in the zodiac. The moon, 22 days old on this 29th day, enters Leo. The sun and the moon are in square.

Ask favors, especially from superiors, in these twenty-four hours.

Seek employment or advance in position or income.

Journeys, whether long or short, are under good signs.

Deal with magistrates and other persons having power or authority.

Those in employment should be cautious lest they make sad errors through haste or carelessness, particularly in the late morning and the early afternoon.

One of the very favorable days of the year for engaging maids, visiting friends or seeking simple amusement or entertainment.

Bake. Brew. Fish.

Beware against speeding vehicles on city streets or country roads.

Women with this birthdate will do well to mark their deeds carefully on Fridays during the twelve month, and especially so in December and August. These should be lucky times for them.

Men with this birthdate must attend closely to business, whether their own or their employer's. All forms of speculative enterprise harbor ill results for them this year.

The signs over children born today are for quickness and cleverness, but carelessness about the material concerns of life. Girls will be in danger from too much indulgence in social pleasures. Boys should be trained to take real interest in their daily work.

SCRAPS OF WIT.

Diligent in Her Devotion.

"Does your husband belong to any secret societies?" inquired Mrs. Kawner.

"No," answered Mrs. Middlebrook; "I have found out the name of every one of them."—[Chicago Tribune.]

Chance of His Life.

English Clergyman: And when you arrive in London, my dear lady, don't fail to see St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey.

Fair American: You bet; I'll rattle those off, sure; but what I've been hankering to see, ever since I was knee-high to a grasshopper, is the Church of England!—[Punch.]

No Escape for Him.

"Yes," drawled old Farmer Hardapple, down Fox River way, "I'm going up to Chicago on a tour, but I don't know whether it will be a personally conducted tour or not."

"I reckon it will be a personally conducted tour, Hiram," spoke up Mandy Hardapple. "You know, I'm going along with you."

A Sufficient Reason.

Customer: It seems to me that's an awful price to have to pay for a pound of liver.

Butcher: You must remember, ma'am, that the liver is a choice part. This steer weighed nearly a ton, and he had only one small liver.—[Chicago Tribune.]

A Second Installation.

A little girl was sitting on the floor crying. After a while she stopped and seemed buried in thought. Looking up suddenly, she said:

"Mamma, what was I crying about?"

"Because I wouldn't let you go out."

"Oh, yes!" And she set up another howl.—[Exchange.]

The Mark of Value.

Mrs. Bloodbad: But the Neurox lack the hall mark of ancient lineage.

Mrs. Wisely: True; but they have the dollar mark of modern success.—[Chicago News.]

No One to Treat.

"According to this paper," observed Mr. Goodwin, "an Ohio man has lived a year on beer alone."

"Well, that's as it should be," rejoined Mrs. Goodwin. "Any man who lives on beer ought to be compelled to live alone."—[Leslie's Weekly.]

Sunflower Philosophy.

At some time in the life of every man he tries poetry and the chicken business.

If a woman is sickly, it is not usually discovered until after she is married.

Every windy day we wonder at how thin it is possible for some women to become.

We wish we could hear of a woman who, knowing the men, was satisfied with them.

Electing a man to office is as sure away of discovering his faults as marrying him.

On Judgment Day, when we hear every one's record read, we shall pretend to be shocked, but we won't be.—[Atchison (Kan.) Globe.]

One of the least attractive campaign exhibits is Judge Parker's sore head.—[Milwaukee Sentinel.]

BITS OF MUSIC AND THE STAGE

The Master of the... Through round on round of sleep. As up the valley of fortune insensibly we creep. Slowly, how slowly! From the sentient tube, the fan, the liard, the keef, for, slowly our way we win. From ape to savage man, and then the shepherd's toil, the hand that stripes the master of the mill.

The artisan of cities and the architect of tombs, the harnesser of winds, the ruler and the sage. Yet, deep within our souls, which brings its own vast, which shaped us to the vast, shall guide us to the last. We are not that alone which we are, but we are the above the verge of night, the pulse of the great life, has scarce begun to climb.

Dear, though you wander where you will, I shall come back to you. You cannot hide me, but I shall come back to you. In other eyes, on lips that smile, in music, in the little things in your blind prayers for me, I shall come back to you. God keep you safe through all, through all the wrongs of the world, till in the wise joy of nature, I shall come back to you.

Home of my heart, my home, where can you find a home? With the pulse of the great life, that breathes to my and to you. Where can you find a home? With the pulse of the great life, that breathes to my and to you. Than that which the pulse of the great life, that breathes to my and to you. Like the benediction of the great life, that breathes to my and to you. That bid us strive—and strive.

Home of my heart, my home, where can you find a home? With the pulse of the great life, that breathes to my and to you. Where can you find a home? WILLIAMS ENFORCE LAW.

The Board of Education has arrived at a decision to strictly enforce the provisions of the child labor law as applying to every child between the ages of ten and sixteen years. The principal officer has received instructions to take such action as he deems necessary in the enforcement of these provisions, and it is expected that the regular attendance of all children of school age in the public schools will be maintained. The rain of yesterday continued far into the night. The precipitation for the storm was .18 of an inch. The downpour proved beneficial to the gardens and pastures and came without injury to any interests.

Merchant Whose Child With Unsolicited Arm Is Refused Admission to School Declares He Will Bring Mandatory Action in the Superior Court.

SAN PEDRO, Oct. 1.—War has broken out between the local Board of Education and certain parents of school children over the vaccination of students in the public schools. After the opening of the term the board issued an order making vaccination compulsory. The order was generally complied with, but some parents refused to allow their children to be scratched. These have been refused admission to the schools. Among them is the son of W. C. Houghton, a local merchant. To-day Houghton went to Los Angeles, and declared he would bring a mandatory action against the school trustees to compel them to allow his son to attend school, and stated that he was determined to carry the matter to the supreme court, if necessary.

Dr. John S. Gwaltney, president of the school board, and Attorney Frank Karr, a member, contend that the board of Education is well within its legal rights in ordering compulsory vaccination, and that many court decisions in the matter are favorable to its position.

OPPOSES BONDS.
The local Chamber of Commerce today passed resolutions opposing the issuance of $1,000,000 of twenty-year bonds for the purchase of certain real estate south of Islais Creek, San Francisco, known as the India Basin Act, which is to be voted upon at the general election in November. The action was taken upon the request of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and the Ship Owners Association of the Pacific.

REDONDO REPORT SHOWS MOST GRATIFYING CONDITION.

Reported That New Pipe Line Is to Be Laid from Sherman Oil Field and Entire Output Handled at This Port—Body of Ptomaine Poisoning Victim Exhumed.

REDONDO, Oct. 16.—The quarterly report of the City Clerk discloses a gratifying condition of the finances. The quarter's receipts were $6537.11, the disbursements $22,472.41. Of the latter, however, nearly $18,000 represents payments of the bonded indebtedness and on sewer. City Hall and other permanent improvements. The excess of receipts over expenditures is about $1500. The balance on hand in the city treasury is $21,716.68, apportioned as follows: General fund, $3901.31; library, $135.73; City Hall bonds, $50,000; sewer bonds, $143,14; sewer construction, $15,968.63. This healthy condition of municipal finances is all the more gratifying when the facts are considered that the new City Hall is complete and fully furnished, the streets are in fair condition, the sewer is ready for use, the new septic tank in working order, and the entire sewer system ready for use as soon as the pumping station is complete, which will be during the next thirty days.

The report is current here that a new pipe line from the Sherman oil field to this port is about to be laid, and that Redondo will, within six months, be handling the entire output of the fields. Already 17,000 barrels per week come to this port for shipment, but this is a mere bagatelle compared with the total output. If the plan is carried out one of the big oil fleet may be expected to enter and clear daily. In order to do this, however, a delivering station must be proded here capable of at least 5000 barrels per hour. Messrs. G. T. Camron and S. L. Holliday and General Manager T. B. Henderson of the Associated Oil Company, were here this week in company with Managers Burnett and President Garnsey of the Reondo Improvement Company, and Chief Engineer Kuhritz of the Huntington system, and went over the round carefully. Local officials of the company state that they have no announcement to make at present, but it is easy to see that an important deal

BODY EXHUMED.
Undertaker Cate today exhumed the body of Patrick Donovan, a former employe of the Pacific Light and Over Company, who died here last summer of ptomaine poisoning, and shipped the remains to Greenfield, Mass. This was done in response to the request of T. J. Donovan, a brother of the deceased, who resides at Springfield. Patrick Donovan was the sole victim of the epidemic of ptomaine poisoning which occurred here last summer, the origin of which was charged to impure milk, but never satisfactorily explained, and during which at least a score of people were attacked.

EXPERIMENTS PAY.

MONROVIA, Oct. 16.—The first attempt in this vicinity to produce on commercial scale the avocado, popularly known as the "alligator pear," being made by F. A. Bliss on his 10th ranch, Buena Vista, in Duarte. A two-and-one-half-acre orchard propagated from seedling trees has been planted by Bliss as the result of ten years' experimental work. A larger acreage will be planted next year. The rent stock is derived from seeds furnished by the government agricultural department. The trees bore when seven years old and in ten years have attained a height of over thirty feet, with a corresponding spread. Owing to their vigorous habit of growth, they planted thirty-two feet apart. As the fruit does not come true from seed the young trees are budded to proved varieties as oranges are. Though it has been demonstrated that by careful selection a variety of the avocado can be grown in districts occasionally subject to relatively low temperatures, is essentially a tropical fruit and grows best in the restricted frostless areas of the foothills. For this reason local ranchers are interested in it as a favorable claimant for unoccupied holdings. It is stated that several all orchards will be planted the coming year. The demand of the Los Angeles market is in excess of the supply and in the past year trees on the Bliss ranch netted over $30 each. Other experimenters report equally favorable results.

DEATH FOR SCALE.
The thorough cleaning up of scale-infested fruit and ornamental trees will begin next week, under the supervision of Orchard Inspector Blain.
Each infested shrubbery and small chief difficulty of the present campaign is to deal effectively with neglected trees in recent subdivisions. As these cannot be brought into profitable bearing again for at least three years, it is deemed advisable in most es to grub them out. Owners desiring to do this will be compelled fumigate again next year and probably the year after. There is no chance of evasion since, under the State laws, the county is empowered to do the work and the expense incurred becomes
